Whence Began Time?

LONG YEARS AGO Parson Cooley Sumner Reynolds, who was the first pulpiteer we ever saw or heard, at the Old Log school house took his text—and stuck to it. As a child we followed his every utterance—ad, as far as practicable, gave it complete acceptance. It sort of strains us sometimes to give literal acceptance to the matters about which he seemed most specific.

That was a long time ago—and those of water has passed down the river during the succeeding days, hence we have come to sort of casually pass them up as not intimately within our realm of acceptance or understanding. There, for instance, was a sort of hazy acceptance of the beginning of time—which was not in the intimate sense our responsibility.

Sort of, in a measure during the succeeding years, we have wondered why anybody wants to go so far back in the unknown realm—or too far ahead in a mere physical and personal calculation.

Certainly, it is evident that every thing—human, animal, vegetable or mineral—has come from some pre-existent force. Therefore, it is positive enough that all the existing things—material and spiritual—had a connection between the long-gone past and the possibly unmeasurable future days.

Measured in days and years, the past and the future are vague, but we have recently come upon some words, given by an excellent writer, which open our eyes—as to time, which has gone before. Read these words from an alleged scientific authority:

THE EARTH is somewhat more than two billion years old, the ocean almost as old. For a few million years rain that fell on this gaseous planet turned to steam. When the earth cooled, so dense were the clouds around the earth that rain fell steadily for years, maybe centuries. That's how we got the oceans. The salt in the ocean came from the rocks on the land. As time passes, the ocean gets saltier.

Life began in the ocean. The ocean was swarming with plant and animal life while the land, for more than three-fourths of geologic time, had no life. It was only three hundred and fifty million years ago that the first pioneer of land crept out on the shore. It was an ancestor of the crab, lobster and insect family.

In a single cubic mile of sea water there are, on the average, a hundred and sixty-six million tons of dissolved salts. About fifty of the known elements have been identified in sea water, and probably all the others are there. There is enough gold in the sea to make everybody rich, if a cheap way could be found to extract it, but unfortunately gold would then be cheap.

What we have printed is from an article in the New Yorker magazine by Rachel L. Carson, now in a book called The Sea Around Us, Oxford University Press.

Two Thousand Negro Bureau Leaders Meet

Approximately 2,000 negro Farm Bureau leaders recently attended a series of seven district Farm Bureau membership rallies. The purpose of the rallies, according to Mack Guest, acting GFBF director of organization and research, was to state and to clarify the main agricultural issues of today. Another feature was that of explaining and acquainting Negro Farm Bureau leaders with Farm Bureau plans for this year including Farm Bureau Day.

Principal speakers appearing on the program included H. L. Wingate, GFBF president; P. H. Stone, State Extension Agent Negro Work, and F. P. Fugate, head itinerant teachers training, negro schools, Ft. Valley. The district schools were held in Claxton, Americus, Greenville and Valdosta. It is expected that Negro Farm Bureau leaders will be conducting their individual Farm Bureau membership drive on Farm Bureau Day, September 9th.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. O. C. Anderson take this opportunity to thank the doctors and nurses at the Bulloch County Hospital and all the relatives and friends who were so kind to her during her stay in the hospital and to us in our sorrow at her passing.

THE FAMILY.

FOR SALE—75 acres, 26 cultivated, best grade of land; two houses, both in fairly good condition; 40 acres of pretty timber, small fish pond, well stocked, four miles east, one mile off paved road, reasonable terms. JO. SIAH ZETTEROWER. (27aug12)

Child's Education Is Dependent on Study

You want your child to learn, and you want him to do well in school, you want him to get along with people, to get along with himself. Then remember your school-age child is at the age when the habits of punctuality, regularity and study, of properly formed, will fix themselves upon the child throughout his life. His future success depends upon acquiring these useful habits. It is to your interest and his that he attend school every day that health permits so that he can keep up with his studies daily. Regular attendance in school helps the child derive more benefit from the school and helps to prevent emotional disturbances and mental illness.

But be sure that you wait until your child is old enough before you enroll him in school. According to state regulations children under six years of age desiring to enter school for the first time should be permitted to do so provided they are to become six within the first three months (60 school days) of the school year, thus if your child has reached his sixth birthday by December 31st, 1952, he is eligible to enter school on the opening day, Sept. 10, 1952. Otherwise, he must wait another term to enter school.

AMERICAN LEGION HAS NEW HOME MANAGER

Francis Trappell, commander of the American Legion, announces that the Legion home is now under the management of A. L. Denmark, who has had many years of experience in operating club rooms of similar nature. Mr. Denmark came to Statesboro from Savannah, where he was managing the Moose Club of that city. His wife has been placed in charge of the dining room and kitchen, and all Legionnaires may now enjoy the fine food which is being prepared under her experienced supervision. Under the house rules a Legionnaire may invite guests to the Legion Home to enjoy the food and other entertainment furnished during the evening.

STRAYED—From my place near Denmark one dark spotted sow, marked over-slope and split in right ear, over-slope in other; weighing about 350 pounds or more; will pay reward. S. D. WATERS, Brooklet. (28aug12)

Communist Trade Up In Europe FB Reports

Reports from various sources in Europe indicate a weakening in the economic barrier between the Communist nations and those of the West, the American Farm Bureau Federation says. For instance, Bulgaria, a Soviet satellite, has granted export quotas for wheat and rye for the first time since World War II. In return, Austria will supply iron and steel products to Bulgaria. At the same time, Communist China has replaced the United States as the principal supplier of soy beans for Europe. In 1951 Europe bought 503,400 metric tons of soybeans from China, compared to 237,786 tons from the United States. In 1950 America had supplied 55 per cent of Europe's soybean needs, but in 1951 America's share of the market dropped to 30 per cent.

These are straws which show how the wind is blowing. AFBF has pointed out on numerous occasions that Western Europe must have food and fiber, and that the people of those countries buy from the Communists if they cannot earn the dollar which they must have to buy from America.

Farm Bureau Activities

(By BYRON DYER)

Thanks to the business men of Statesboro for the Farmers Day expressed by the West Side Farm Bureau Tuesday night. Edwin Banks, the West Side president, stated that farmers generally were grateful to the business men for such an event, and that they hoped within a short while to have something that business men could be invited to in return.

Mrs. D. L. Deal, the West Side speaker, urged the farmers to build a strong organization and to use it to protect their natural resources, especially timber. She recommended that young people on the farm be encouraged to help preserve the timber, and that they needed something of their own anyway, so why not let them put out a few slash piles each winter. Mrs. Deal was especially interested in everyone voting in every election. Groups such as the West Side Farm Bureau are promoting the best kind of Americanism, she declared. Getting together and working together for a common interest would help the spirit in the community, the schools and churches.

Dr. D. L. Deal and Miss Elizabeth Deal were also visitors at West Side. W. H. Smith Jr., state Farm Bureau director, asked his neighbors and Bulloch county as a whole to operate with the Farm Bureau's plans to renew as many of its members as possible on September 9th. He pointed out that they had tried such program in two counties, and that each of them came through with more members than ever before.

Then, too, Mr. Smith stated that local groups could get more help from the state organization's publicity on renewals by working with them. Francis Groover, Stillson's president, and Mrs. Dan C. Lee, county Associated Women chairman, urged the Stillson chapter to also co-operate in the one-day membership renewal efforts. Plans were made at their meeting Wednesday night to set up a committee to carry out the proposed program on renewals. John C. Cromley, Brooklet's president, was a visitor at the Stillson meeting and stated Brooklet, the county's largest community chapter, was also going to line up with the other chapters in the one-day renewal plans.

C. M. Cowart, president of the Port chapter, outlined the one-day renewals plans to his group Thursday night, and then the serving committee chairman held a meeting following the general meeting to work out plans for carrying out the proposal in the Port community on September 9th. This group felt that, as West Side, Ogeechee and several others have done, each serving chairman could be given cards for his group and then he in turn procure some members of his committee to help see that group. This would simply mean that no one committee would have very many to contact, and lots of people would be working at the same time. A series of slides on winter grazing programs found in Bulloch county last winter were a part of the program at Port and Stillson.
